The Tale of the Mattapoisett Swordfish

By Marilou Newell

High above the end of Long Wharf next to Mattapoisett's Shipyard Park flies an iconic symbol: the swordfish weathervane. It has greeted thousands over the decades, moving with the shifting winds, witnessing the tides of time.

But what is its history, its story, how did the swordfish get there and what does its future hold? To get to the bottom of those questions, The Wanderer sought out the descendants of Sophia Means, F. Gilbert Hinsdale, and William DeYong Field, gathering oral histories from cousins Horace Field III and William "Billy" DeYong Field.

The story begins with Sophia Sword (no pun intended) who married William Allen Means in 1877. The couple had two daughters, Mary and Martha. As a widow, Sophia bought the land at 20 Water Street and built a home on the site.

Martha would marry F. Gilbert Hinsdale and they lived together in the house at 20 Water Street. Mary wed Horace F. Field, the son of William DeYong Field, a prominent landowner in Mattapoisett.

On June 16, 2017, Horace Field III would share his family's history with the swordfish:

"My Great-Uncle Hinsdale had the swordfish made as a weathervane for the top of his boathouse at 20 Water Street," Horace said. Hinsdale, known to Horace as 'Uncle Gibby,' had an interest in maritime memorabilia, amassing a collection of whaling-era materials that was later gifted to the New Bedford Whaling Museum.

The swordfish was modeled after an actual fish harpooned by Hinsdale. Although the exact date of its creation is not known, Horace believes it had to be in the 1920s.

Horace explained that during the 1938 hurricane, the boathouse that was situated at the 20 Water Street homestead ended up across the street, pushed there by the unrelenting storm surge.

"It landed in the back of the lot," he said. Today, that former boathouse is 23 Water Street, a bed and breakfast. As you walk down Water Street, the homes numbered 20 and 23 both bear historic plaques that read "Sophia Means." Of the boathouse, Field concluded, "It must have had good bones."

After the hurricane, the swordfish was placed in storage deep within the recesses of the garage at 20 Water Street, never seeing the light of day until the 1950s. At that time, the swordfish was gifted to the Town by Hinsdale's widow, Patricia, and was erected at the end of Long Wharf where it's been flying ever since.

It's interesting to note that Shipyard Park, the tiny but brilliant gem next to the wharves, was also gifted to the Town by Mr. Hinsdale during his lifetime. In fact, the Hinsdale and Field families have a long history of service to the community.

On the cover: LOOKING SHARP – The historic swordfish soaring over the Mattapoisett Town Wharf recently got a bit of TLC from its long-time caregiver William DeYong Field. Patricia Hinsdale donated the weathervane to the Town back in the 1950s. Photo by Jean Perry

John Field was a selectman from 1966 to 1973, while Horace F. Field was a selectman from 1902 to 1916. And many boat owners know Horace Field III as the former harbormaster serving in that capacity from 1999 to 2013.

On June 13, 2017, the Mattapoisett Board of Selectmen gave William "Billy" DeYong Field's great-great grandson to his namesake a Certificate of Appreciation for the decades he has dedicated to keeping the swordfish in viable condition. In a follow-up, he explained how the weathervane was crafted.

Billy said that Manuel Perry, who had been a local craftsman working for Hinsdale, was the artist responsible for its creation. "He was a master model ship builder," Billy said.

"The swordfish is sort of like a model airplane," said Billy. "There's a frame and over that, wooden slates." He said the swordfish is constructed of native white pine with a solid tail, fins, and sword. The weathervane is painted to mimic the blue hues of the animal in the wild. Then, a coating of epoxy is applied to protect and seal the wood.

"Through the years, about half of the original has been replaced," Billy shared. He said that a major renovation was done in the 1970s.

He also confided that the hollow interior contains no less than three time capsules.

The first capsule he said holds a letter from Seth

Hinsdale that describes the construction of the swordfish. The other two capsules hold unknown items.

Of the current condition of the swordfish, Billy said, "Well, it's like an old man's teeth," lots of bits and pieces have been replaced. He hopes that in the not-too-distant future, a mold can be made of the weathervane and a fiberglass model created to replace the original.

"Maybe the original one can go into the Mattapoisett Museum," said Billy.

For now, the wooden swordfish continues to grace the end of Long Wharf, having its picture taken and inviting the public to enjoy a place rich in history and steeped in the goodwill of those who love Mattapoisett.

muscles and tendons. This gives them a vise-like clasping grip on a tree trunk while stiff tail feathers serve as supporting props while they climb.

Like most woodpecker species, distinctive patches of red are more pronounced in pileated males. The bone in their skull is thicker to withstand the frequent thunderous pounding with a chisel-like bill to find insects and larvae, particularly carpenter ants. Their long tongues have barbed tips to retrieve their prey, and they have feathers over their nostrils to protect the nasal cavity from dust raised by their excavations.

While probing and digging out the rotting punky wood of a dead tree festered with insects, the daily intensive effort to find food also serves an industrial benefit of carving out the inner cavity of a hollow, perfect for nesting, hatching, and raising a brood of fledglings, usually 20 or 30 feet off the ground for protection from climbing predators.

Both parents take alternating turns in caring for the fledglings, as well as bringing food by regurgitating it into their mouths, as illustrated in my drawing.

This colorful species that is a delight to most birdwatchers became rare in Eastern America with the clearing of forests in years past, but has increased in numbers again since the beginning of the 20th century.

The graphic performance of this high profile figure in parks, backyard woodlots, and even suburbs of large cities, inspired by the similar acorn woodpecker, became a perfect animated anthropomorphic of the pileated as a screwball characterization of inane behavior feathered in garish design by Universal Pictures. Woody Woodpecker starred along with Bugs Bunny and Daffy Duck in the year 1940, and Woody's prolific voice and behavior was successfully imitated by the famous Mel Blanc, and his famous laugh was subsequently

However, Woody's humorous character gradually evolved into a more refined and logical hero portrayal later around 1972. This improved image was produced for the Saturday morning television series The New Woody Woodpecker Show.

So, if a pair has moved into the backyard of your neighborhood to occupy a vacant apartment of their own making, you would have been the first to know about it. As a birdwatcher, you should be as royally entertained as you might have been as a child being taken to the Saturday afternoon cartoons. And if all their commotion as portrayed were to become dubious Hollywood performers, there is nothing to worry about except,

Conservation Restriction Will Ensure Water Protection

Marion Board of Selectmen

By Jean Perry

The Marion Board of Selectmen on June 20 approved a conservation restriction for an approximately 165-acre property off Wolf Island Road that will protect even more of the Mattapoisett River Valley drinking water supply for many years to come.

Town Meeting back in May had approved spending $20,000 towards the acquisition of the land, but the majority of the funding was provided by a state drinking water protection grant for which Marion Water & Sewer Superintendent Rob Zora had applied.

Alan Decker from the Buzzards Bay Coalition said the land, which straddles the Mattapoisett and Rochester town lines, would provide for up to four additional source wells for the Town of Marion within one four-acre area allotted for the purpose.

The closing on the property purchase is set for next week, and the Towns of Fairhaven and Mattapoisett, as well as the Town of Rochester, are all working towards the permanent conservation restriction of the property for the perpetual preservation of drinking water.

The land would be open to the public for passive recreational use.

Before voting to allow the conservation restriction process to begin, Selectman Norm Hills pointed out the language in the paperwork that assigns maintenance of the property to the Town of Marion, so the other two selectmen should be conscious of the maintenance costs the Town would incur.

In other matters, Town Administrator Paul Dawson told the selectmen that efforts on behalf of the Town to find an alternative non-monetary solution to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineer's 'mitigation fee' for the unpermitted construction of a "seawall" near Sprague's Cove have failed.

Town counsel, in a letter to the board, stated that he had sought alternatives to the $33,500 mitigation fee – essentially a fine – but he concluded that any legal attempts to appeal the decision in court would be unsuccessful for the Town.

"Any attempt to litigate this would be ultimately unsuccessful," said Dawson.

Town counsel also sought to offer up partial payment in lieu of the full amount, which was also unsuccessful.

"I understand, it's a bit of a pill to swallow," said Dawson to the board. "We have really worked hard to come up with a different alternative. I don't see one and I don't think one is likely."

Town Meeting had already approved the expenditure of the funds in May. The board voted to approve the payment of the fine.

The selectmen also discussed two additional "Little Free Libraries" that need permanent homes in town. The Elizabeth Taber Library acquired two more Little Free Libraries, in addition to the one currently standing at the Marion Music Hall.

Hills suggested a number of locations, including Silvershell Beach, the new community center, and Old Landing. Chairman Jody Dickerson charged Hills with meeting with Library Director Libby O'Neill to assist in finding the two Little Free Libraries homes.

"It would be great if we could make more of

Vacation Rental to Remain 'Ceased and Desisted'

Mattapoisett Board of Selectmen

By Marilou Newell

The old Bow Mansion is situated at the end of Ship Street in a quiet neighborhood populated with a variety of home styles, from stately colonials to modern contemporary designs. With views of the harbor and beach access, it is for many the perfect vacation spot. But very limited commercial rental property makes sourcing a place to stay difficult. So the question is, may property owners rent their homes to vacationers in residential districts?

On June 15, the Mattapoisett Zoning Board of Appeals was challenged to either uphold a Cease and Desist Order issued by Director of Inspectional Services Andy Bobola, or rescind it in favor of Caroline Whitney, partner in the Ship Street LLC, registered owners of 2 Ship Street.

After receiving numerous complaints from abutters – complaints that ranged from loud weekend parties, events being held on the property, and an abundance of cars stacked up along the narrow dead end roadway – and questions about the legality of the property being rented out to vacation visitors versus being used by family, Bobola issued the Cease and Desist.

On this night represented by attorney Patricia McArdle, Whitney came before the ZBA to appeal the order.

McArdle explained that the large multi-family structure has been owned by Whitney and her extended family members, the Blakes, since 1953 and had more recently been placed into a limited liability corporation for estate planning purposes.

"Over the years the family has grown," McArdle said, with more than 30 relatives now involved with the property.

Of the complaints, McArdle said Whitney had a right to rent the house to non-family members and that she had put in place many rental restrictions to ensure peaceful and "respectful" use of the property in deference to the neighbors. She claimed, however, that in spite of Whitney's best efforts, the neighbors "kept asking for more."

"It's harassment of the family," stated McArtle.

McArdle demonstrated Whitney's efforts by producing a copy of the rental agreement that stipulates weddings, reunions, and similar events are not permitted. She also produced documents that showed Whitney advising violators that they would not be allowed to rent the property again. She said all care and consideration of the neighborhood had been provided for, including parking restrictions and clean up requirements. Nothing, McArdle indicated, appeased the abutters.

McArdle also explained that the property, listed on many real estate websites with a value nearing $2 million, came with a big tax bill. To offset property taxes, she said the trust rents it out. Real estate taxes are reported as approximately $26,000 per year.

But McArdle also said it was a family home. She said that only five weeks in the summer were rented out. The Whitneys and Blakes use it the rest of the season. But she did agree that such a large home welcomed more visitors than the average dwelling.

"It's a large multi-family home with eleven bedrooms and two kitchens. It's a one hundred-year-old home. What if she lived there now and had all her family over? …That wouldn't be a violation…. She has the right to rent out her home."

That was the rub, according to Bobola. The town's bylaw 5.1.2 states what is allowed: Renting of rooms for not more than two (2) persons in a dwelling regularly occupied for residential purposes, provided no signs are displayed. He viewed Whitney's activity as a violation of that restrictive language.

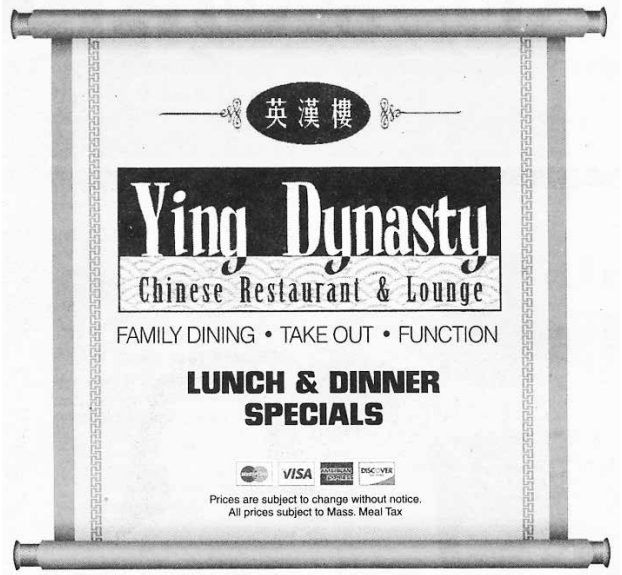

And while all the neighbors that were present at the meeting confirmed that they knew it was being used as rental property, all were willing to turn a blind eye until the last several years.

Neighbor Daniel Calano, 3 Ship Street, rose to speak. Calano said, "There are new large groups weekly. They arrive on Friday with ten cars or more…. This is not a family and friends property…. It's a rental property." He continued, "I've had years of discussions with the owner to try and work things out…. She is aggressively marketing to potential renters."

Whitney's posting on VRBO, a website for vacation rental properties, lists Bow Mansion this way: Eleven bedrooms for 21 to 27 people … ideal for multiple family occupancy … available for rent May through September. The posting also states: Large festivities or loud noise that interferes with our neighbors' pleasures, most especially in the evenings is not allowed. It also states that entertainment of large groups of guests must be done elsewhere, no events shall take place at the property, and no party tents or other structures may be erected at the site without approval.

Calano, supported by fellow neighbors, said that a wedding was planned to take place on the property, but that they were not aggrieved over that single event. While they posed no objection to the wedding, Whitney, they claimed, would not agree to discontinue such events in the future for paying customers.

Town Counsel Jonathan Silverstein told the board members, "Any use that isn't specifically permitted is not allowed. The current use does not meet those uses." He continued, "The Town doesn't have to allow any bedrooms to be rented out, but it does allow two bedrooms in owner-occupied homes."

Hearing no new testimony, Chairman Susan Akin closed public participation and the board weighed the matter.

Board members Maryann Brogan, along with Paul Millott, Norman Lyonnaise, and Akin agreed that Whiney was not in compliance and was, in fact, accepting money in exchange for use of the property and therefore the order should stand. But member Kenneth Pacheco thought otherwise.

"What about all the other houses in town being

Violations, Restorations, and Enforcements

Rochester Conservation Commission

By Marilou Newell

The June 20 meeting of the Rochester Conservation Commission found the commission working through a list of violations and restoration plans due to illegal cutting and the issuance of Enforcement Orders for several properties.

Coming before the commission was William Chamberlain, employee of Decas Cranberry Company, and Brooke Monroe of Pinebrook Consulting with two after-the-fact Notice of Intent filings. Both filings dealt with unpermitted logging activities at Walnut Plain Road and 223 Burgess Avenue.

Before Monroe could present her proposed remediation plans, Chamberlain asked to be recognized.

"First, let me say there's nothing nefarious about this project." Chamberlain explained that he had had discussions with Conservation Agent Laurell Farinon before enlisting the services of a sawmill to remove trees from the properties, but he admitted, "I didn't listen." He then went on to plead on behalf of Decas Cranberry Company.

"This is a residential property. We've been paying full taxes," Chamberlain said of the two lots. "It's all on me. I convinced the corporation to cut down the trees."

Monroe shared her opinion that it was better to leave the disturbed areas as is for the time being and review regrowth in the fall. That didn't sit well with the commission, as Chairman Michael Conway stated, "I don't see the need to wait."

The commission and Farinon wanted to see shrubs and other native plantings done now to provide habitat enrichment.

Monroe asked for a continuation for the Walnut Plain property hearing until the next meeting, at which time she'll return with a planting plan.

Later in the hearing, while discussing the lot on Burgess Avenue, things got a little heated when Conway said he was getting annoyed with Decas, saying, "This is the third violation this year…. It looks like a pattern."

Chamberlain fired back, "I don't think it's a pattern. Since 1935, Decas has been a good neighbor." He said the company had created jobs in the area and provided passive recreation opportunities by allowing the public access to their properties.

Farinon intervened, saying that what they were being asked for was the same thing the commission had been asking for similar violations: restoration plans.

This hearing was also continued, and both will be reopened when the commission meets again in July.

Returning to the Conservation Commission were Lorraine and William Hawkes, 591 Neck Road, with a restoration plan to mitigate vegetation cutting along Snipatuit Pond in violation of wetlands regulations. Satisfied that all the commission's requests for size and types of plants were in place, the Notice of Intent filing was conditioned.

A NOI after-the-fact filing for property owned by Hartley Beach Trust, Patricia Corwin, Norene Hartley, and Keith Cannon was also heard. A violation notice was issued on April 13 for illegal brush cutting and alternation of vegetated wetlands along Snows Pond. A restoration plan was submitted by Brian Madden of LEC Environmental Consultants, which included high bush blueberry shrubs and other native species. Madden said that grubbing had not taken place so many shrubs and plants would return throughout the growing season.

Farinon complimented Madden for the thoroughness of the plans and noted that the violation had in fact been self-reported. Conway said, "When someone self reports, it's not only easier on the staff, but it demonstrates acting in good faith." The plan was conditioned.

The commission also issued Enforcement Orders for illegal activities on two properties. Logan Smith, 70 Ryder Road, had received a notification of violation on June 1 for earthwork and placement of wood chips in the 25-foot no-touch zone. Farinon said Smith had refused to remove a fire pit and do other requested repairs. An Enforcement Order was issued.

Also receiving an Enforcement Order was Taylor Jesse and Chance Avery, 422 High Street, for cutting and clearing in a bordering vegetated area. Farinon said that in a telephone conversation with the property owners they had said that estimates for repairs had not been sought.

proposed Candy Pantry came before the Marion Planning Board on Monday night during the Community Outreach portion of its meeting to request relief from the lengthy permit process.

Patrick Kelly, the young man who is hoping to open the Candy Pantry within the barber shop at 428 Marion Road, came before the board flanked by his best friend, Zak Koplen, to ask the board to consider his proposal.

The board had issued a cease and desist letter to the young man, stating that his shop needed a special permit to operate at the location.

Currently, the Candy Pantry has been given permission to open within the Ropewalk Plaza in Mattapoisett.

Kelly asked the board, "May I please have my candy store at its original location at [the] barber shop?"

Planning Board Chairman Eileen Marum explained to Kelly that because the store required a special permit, it triggers a minor site plan review, including traffic and other considerations. Marum stated, "We would be pleased to consider your plan and the items you will be submitting to us," adding that with proper documentation the board would be happy to approve the proposal.

Planning Board member Steve Kokkins said, "At first, I thought it was going to be just candy, and then I realized it would be ice cream and outside tables, which is a change of use."

Member Chris Collings added, "I've been on the property and I'm very impressed with what you've done, and I'm excited to have another active business in town. Sorry for the bumps in the road."

Koplen described to the board the broader benefits of the project for him and for Kelly, saying, "It is a wonderful opportunity to socialize in the community, and it is an honor to do this within this community."

Marum described to Kelly the public hearing process and scheduled the hearing for July 10. In closing, Brian Kelly, Patrick's father, addressed the board, raising the issue of timing.

"Patrick is only here for the summer. [Waiting until July 10] is a large part of his employment time…." He requested a temporary permit, offering the board some concessions in exchange for a temporary permit.

The senior Kelly suggested to the board that the tables, chairs, and ice cream could be removed from the immediate proposal. Marum said that she would need to bring it to town counsel, which she would do immediately. Marum remarked that "Everyone at this table has children, and we only want the best for them."

The board authorized a temporary permit subject to town counsel's approval. Board member Norman Hills expressed his support by saying, "I've been in the store and wasn't sure I was in the same building!"

In other business, the board discussed a proposed

Approval Not Required plan for a project at 111 Wareham Road submitted by Tad Wallenhaupt and his partner, Alex Urquart.

The project contemplates combining four existing lots into two lots.

Hills expressed concern, shared by the board, about the condition of Marvel Street, which will provide frontage for one of the lots. The other lot will get its frontage from Route 6.

The applicants' engineer described Marvel Street as an approved road, which Hills said would need to be verified. Asked if there were any plans to improve Marvel Street, Wallenhaupt stated, "We are not prepared to talk about that – we have no engineered plans, no topography or anything."

Marum, armed with a 25-foot tape measure, questioned the applicants' description of the condition of Marvel Street, which is described as a 20-foot private way, saying she measured the width of the road prior to the meeting.

"It was nine feet, three inches wide from vegetation to vegetation. I'm sure from 6:15 until now, no improvements have been made!"

The board had questions about numerous aspects of the project, which the proponents could not answer at that time, saying that they needed the approval of the ANR plan before they moved ahead on any further engineering and legal work for the project.

Board member Jennifer Francis said that questions of access and drainage would be addressed through the site plan review. Hills suggested the ANR plan be approved subject to verification of Marvel Street being an approved road, for which the board voted unanimously.

The board then began the arduous task, led by Hills, of Zoning Bylaw codification. Hills brought before the board 10 bylaw changes to be reviewed this evening, most of which were passed with brief discussions. Some codification dealt with bringing town bylaw language into conformance with new language of relevant Massachusetts General Laws.

Hills was asked to bring back to the bylaw subcommittee language relating to the general business bylaws. Francis cited concerns about retaining control over future businesses that may not be contemplated and therefore not be enumerated in the bylaw, adding that she didn't want to allow businesses "…by right to exist that we may not want to have in town but don't even know what they may be in the future…."

Kokkins agreed, wondering aloud if there could be a paragraph added that could describe a broad ability of the Town to address this possibility. Hills raised questions relating to notes within the bylaws. "[The subcommittee] couldn't understand what the note was trying to say, so we changed it to something we could understand," Hills said. However, Francis raised some confusing issues, stating, "We need to make these clear – if it's not clear to us, it won't be clear to someone who is trying to interpret it."

Additionally, Hills will be talking with the fire chief regarding fuel storage in town as it relates to all fuels, including ones not currently contemplated by the bylaw.

Marum's report on her attendance at a Complete Streets Workshop dovetailed with Francis' discussion of the work of the Transportation and Circulation Task Force.

The Task Force will be applying for up to $450,000 from the Complete Streets program to fund improvements to sidewalks and development of shared bike lanes among other projects. Marum noted that the program focuses on developing projects that consider the safety of all users, especially children and the elderly. It also encourages context sensitive design in which projects consider the type of road being improved, including historic, environmental and scenic qualities of the street.

A member of SRPEDD is on the Task Force, Francis noted, and will be helping with the proposal. The Town has also asked SRPEDD to do a Corridor Study of Route 6 from the Mattapoisett Line to the Wareham line, which will include data on speed, accidents, dimensions of the roadway, handicapped access, and sidewalk review. This study must be complete before the Town can access funds for work on Route 6.

Kokkins submitted to Francis what he described as an "idea document" for the Task Force to consider as they develop plans for the improvement of Route 6.

Finally, Hills and Francis asked the board to authorize them to make an offer to a candidate from Rhode Island to be the part-time town planner, which the board enthusiastically approved.

The next meeting of the Marion Planning Board is scheduled for July 10 at 7:00 pm at the Police Station Community Room located at 550 Mill Street.

Grassi Bog Slated for Invasives Control

Marion Conservation Commission

By Jean Perry

The frontline for the next battle in the Town of Marion's war against invasive plant species will be Grassi Bog, and the Marion Open Space Acquisition Commission's chosen weapon for the wetlands is the appropriately primeval-sounding "bloody glove method." No phragmites shall be spared its wrath.

The Marion Conservation Commission approved the Notice of Intent for a plan to eradicate and manage invasive species at Grassi Bog, funded by a government grant that MOSAC acquired.

When one commission member wondered if they should go for a site visit to view the areas on the plan for invasive eradication, commission member Jeffrey Doubrava stated, "We've been to Grassi Bog enough times," which was met with agreement.

The aforementioned bloody glove method, MOSAC Chairman John Rockwell said, involves saturating a cotton glove with glyphosate and hand applying it to the flower heads of the phrags. This method is favored in sensitive wetlands areas such as at Grassi Bog since the spraying of herbicides is considerably limited.

The application received approval with an Order of Conditions.

In other matters, Tabor Academy received a Negative Determination for its plan to install an underground grease trap (already approved by the Board of Health), two exit door locations, paved walkways, and a new electrical transformer with new trench at 215 Front Street. Some of the proposed work is within a flood zone.

Mark and Elizabeth Fredericks of 11 Bass Point Road were granted permission to raze an existing deck and replace it with a larger deck, 10 feet by 16 feet in size. The application received a Negative Determination.

Also during the meeting, the public hearing for a RDA for N. George & Laurie Host of 456 Point Road was continued until June 28. No one on behalf of the applicant was present for the hearing.

The public hearing for a RDA for Brian Dupras of 13 Card Drive was also continued until June 28 because the commission visited the wrong property during its site visit.

Subdivision Proposed Near Great Cedar Swamp

Mattapoisett Planning Board

By Marilou Newell

On June 19, the members of the Mattapoisett Planning Board met with David Davignon of N. Douglas Schneider & Associates, representing Dennis Arsenault to discuss plans for a two-lot subdivision adjacent to Great Cedar Swamp at the end of Snowfield Road.

As Davignon explained the conceptual design, he was clearly aware of the many environmental issues the project must explore and appease before building would be allowed.

Davignon said a gravel roadway would be carved out of the woodlands traversing intermittent streams and swamp areas. This roadway would penetrate approximately 1,000 feet into Arsenault's property at the end of Snowfield Road. There, deep into the wooded landscape, is an uplands area sufficient to create two buildable lots, a total of 10.3 acres he demonstrated.

"This project will require extensive permitting," Davignon confirmed. He said that some years ago the soils of the uplands in question were tested and found to be "good" for two septic systems. He also explained that due to costs, the plans are for two private fresh water wells. Also planned for economy's sake are overhead utilities. However, Davignon said everything was very preliminary.

"We'll be seeking a waiver for stormwater management, sidewalks, and length of road," Davignon told the board.

Board member Karen Field wondered about gravel runoff and dust causing an impact on the wetlands of the massive swamp system.

Abutter Peter Laferniere, whose property is located at the dead end where the roadway will be extended, said, "The Great Cedar Swamp has an extreme amount of water…. There are years it never dries." Laferniere said that if a roadway is cut through the swamp to reach the island of uplands, "…it's not going to drain naturally any longer." He worried that his property would suffer from water runoff.

Chairman Tom Tucker said, "I have a lot of questions, but let's wait till we hear back from the other boards." And by that, Tucker meant nearly every board in town.

Davignon said he had reached out to the Highway Department, Water and Sewer Department, and Police and Fire Departments. He also said there would be hearings and/or meetings with the Conservation Commission, Board of Health, and the Department of Environmental Protection.

Tucker asked Davignon return to the board with responses from other departments for the next meeting.

Also coming before the Planning Board was Michael Sudofsky, owner of The Ropewalk and the Stowaway located at 30 and 35 County Road. Sudofsky was seeking to have his request for a Form A Not Required accepted. The application proposes to re-define lot lines due to possible errors made by previous owners. He explained that currently a lot line dissects one of the shops in the retail spaces located in The Ropewalk.

Sudofsky said the insurance providers for the two business entities were "not pleased" with the position of the lines as they currently are recorded. But board member Janice Robbins questioned the new lot plans.

"I would be more comfortable with a variance," Robbins said, versus an acceptance of the reconfiguration by the Planning Board. "This is a pretty major overlap of lot lines," she said. She also said that, while the board could accept lot line changes, they could not create setbacks that were "worse" than those grandfathered.

Tucker told Sudofsky that the board was not required to do anything with his application and suggested he pursue matters through the Zoning Board of Appeals.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett Planning Board is scheduled for July 10 at 7:00 pm in the town hall conference room, a day out of sequence due to the 4th of July holiday.

With Clarification, Deck is Approved

Marion Zoning Board of Appeals

By Jean Perry

On June 15 during a special meeting to address the Special Permit application for Augusta Rosenthal of 8 Quelle Road, the Marion Zoning Board of Appeals approved a deck addition after receiving bylaw clarification from the building inspector.

During the June 6 meeting, the board hesitated on voting on the application since it was unable to determine whether a garage/shed on the property should be factored into the equation when it came to non-conformities on the property.

In a memo addressed to the chairman, Building Inspector Scott Shippey said the board should not be concerned about a 5-foot setback and how that would affect fire and emergency access to the house once a deck is built because access to the rear of the house was not relevant.

As for the distance between the proposed deck and the abutting house, Shippey said, "I see no issues at this time."

"I feel it fits within the character of the neighborhood," said Chairman Marc LeBlanc. "If it were a full blown addition, then I would have no issue with it."

The next meeting of the Marion Zoning Board of Appeals is scheduled for July 13 at 7:30 pm at the Marion Town House if there are any applications.

School Committee Celebrates Successful Year

Mattapoisett School Committee

By Sarah French Storer

During its final meeting of the school year on June 12, the Mattapoisett School Committee lingered over the events, celebrated the end of the current school year, and discussed its goals for the next academic year.

In her introduction to the committee of the School Improvement Plan, Center School Principal Rose Bowman first thanked the School Council members, who developed the plan, for their dedication, saying, "It was a very committed group, strong attendance at the meetings and a great cross section of community members, teachers and parents."

With a strategic plan being developed in the spring of next year, this plan will only cover one year but was replete with many challenging initiatives.

Bowman highlighted the use of the standards based report cards, and expressed her hope that parents will take an active role in providing feedback to the school on the report cards' effectiveness after the first trimester.

Bowman also underscored the new Salty program, which is modeled after a successful program in Marion in which parents and students are brought together monthly to learn in a variety of workshops developed by the school.

Tina Rood, who heads up the Destination Imagination program for ORR, will be speaking to parents in September about starting a program in the younger grades. Students will also be exposed to a variety of local organizations that provide opportunities for experiential learning.

"We are very fortunate to have strong relationships with organizations in the area like the Mattapoisett Land Trust, the Buzzards Bay Coalition, and the League of Women Voters [which] has helped us tremendously in the fifth grade," said Bowman.

Superintendent Doug White thanked everyone "for a very good year, for demonstrating a commitment to the students."

"Everyone should be proud of this school year," White said.

Continuing in the celebratory tone, Associate Principal Kevin Tavares described the Senior Walk, in which the graduates from ORR come back to Center and Old Hammondtown Schools to visit.

The students at the schools made banners and posted pictures of the seniors as younger students. For their part, the seniors wore their caps and gowns, and while at Center School broke into song, singing the old Center School theme song written by a former music teacher.

Tavares described the moment, saying, "The kids lined the hallway and they started singing. There were a lot of tears!"

Bowman highlighted the major transition that all students are going through at this time of year, saying, "As we think about transition, it is so important – every grade has little nuances you have to address…. The kindergarteners coming in to see their classroom, so they have a visual for the summer. One kid brought his backpack – and asked if he could come back tomorrow!"

The third-graders, Bowman said, are excited to move on to Old Hammondtown after their visit to the school, in which they eat in the cafeteria and visit the classrooms. However, there is also a let-down, she says, and so the day after the last day of school, the third graders are sent to the YMCA for the day to be with their friends, play, and eat pizza to help ease the transition.

Bowman recognized retiring kindergarten teacher Audrey Riley, who unfortunately was unable to attend the meeting. Bowman spoke of Riley's dedication to her students as well as to her generosity with her colleagues and broader school community. Bowman detailed Riley's many attributes, thanking her for "her extraordinary leadership."

"Audrey has supported each kindergarten teacher by sharing strategies … [and] the knowledge she has gained over the years with her colleagues," said Bowman. She then held up a copy of Mother Goose Rhymes that will become part of the Center School collection in Riley's honor, noting that rhyming is a gateway to reading in early childhood.

In other business, School Business Administrator Patrick Spencer provided a brief financial report, noting that the committee will be returning approximately $70,000 to $100,000 back to the Town at the end of the fiscal year.

The committee elected Rachel Westgate as its new chairman, keeping Patrick LeClair as vice chairman.

The next meeting of the Mattapoisett School Committee is scheduled for September 18 at 6:30 pm.

ORR Accepts Press Box, JHS Discards Honor Roll

Old Rochester Regional School Committee

By Jean Perry

The Old Rochester Regional School Committee on June 14 accepted a donation of a new press box for the ORR sports field.

Athletics Director Bill Tilden said the proposed press box is designed to dovetail into the athletic complex overhaul the nonprofit group T.U.R.F. is proposing over the long-term.

The donation would cover the $30,000 press box, with no cost to the school.

"This is something that needs to be done," said ORR School Committee member Carey Humphrey.

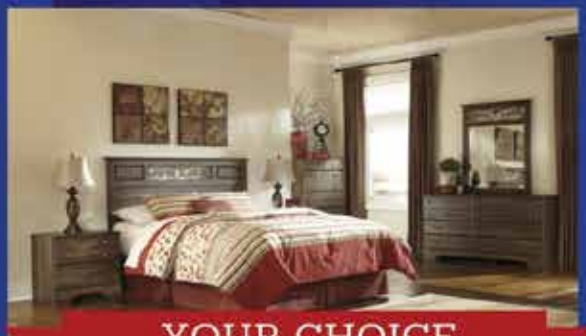

Chairman Tina Rood agreed, saying she herself has witnessed the scorekeeper sitting in the rain amongst

The committee accepted the donation, which includes additional funds for the press box construction costs.

In other matters, the junior high school is doing away with the honor roll, paving the way for students to gain recognition in a number of ways instead of just focusing on grades alone.

Junior high Assistant Principal Silas Coellner said a recent visit to the middle school in Marblehead demonstrated that shifting the focus of achievement away from grades only and ditching the honor roll had a positive impact on students and their eagerness to progress academically without comparing grades with other students.

It's all about the growth mindset, said Coellner, saying the Marblehead school saw an uptick in students progressing in a number of ways and getting more out of their education by measuring growth by what they have learned as opposed to the letter grade they received.

"We saw that as a negative influence," said Coellner about letter grade emphasis.

Coellner pointed out that it has been years now since the junior high printed an honor roll in the newspaper, although the ranking of honors and high honors was always noted on the report card.

The school will now further its transition away from the emphasis on grades by striking the honor roll, as well as the Junior Honor Society, from the student handbook and from school policy.

Principal Kevin Brogioli said that according to one nationally known education expert, there is something to the philosophy of giving heavy weight to letter grades.

The kids in junior high, Brogioli said, are at different levels of maturation as well as academics, and the school has looked at this in relation to achievement for some time.

The school will now look at other ways to recognize effort and progress and highlight students individually for their growth.

The junior high will also move towards the standards-based report card measuring mastery instead of featuring letter grades.

"It's tied with that," said Brogioli. "It's all part of the bigger philosophy that's coming.

Assistant Superintendent Elise Frangos commented, "I'm thrilled with the direction of the junior high entertaining this notion." Frangos continued, "I'm thrilled with this wave of looking forward."

The next meeting of the Old Rochester Regional School Committee is scheduled for September 13 at 6:30 pm in the junior high school media room.

Summer Reading at ORRHS

ORR Update

By Jo Caynon

Summer reading isn't a new requirement for students at ORRHS, but this year brings a series of changes to the program that are aimed towards creating an experience tailored specifically for the high school students.

Since English classes are separated into various levels in the high school – A level, Honors, and AP for the upperclassmen grades – and therefore have different requirements throughout the year, the summer reading choices depend on both grade and class levels.

For example, freshmen entering the English 9A classes only need to read one book from the teacher-approved list located on the library's website and complete a related assignment. However, incoming English 9 Honors students must not only read a book of their choice, but they must also read and complete a study guide on an assigned book on Greek mythology. This required book ties in with lessons later in the year surrounding Homer's The Odyssey.

"Honors reads more books and does more work independently than A level classes," explains English teacher Megan Hall on the differences between the two levels. "For instance, an A level class assigned an essay will break it into sections during class time to organize and draft. An Honors class would be assigned the essay and then runs with it. The two sections do a lot of the same projects, but Honors is more independent with them."

Because Honors classes are held at this higher independence standard, their summer reading is more concrete so that students can launch right into lessons once the school year begins. Getting into junior and senior years, this standard is more closely shared with the Advanced Placement English classes since they have a set amount of time from the start of the school year to AP tests in May.

This year, the summer reading requirements and assignments for all grades are located on a centralized website. The site also includes information on the area's local libraries and how to sign up for library cards in the Sails network and Boston Public Library network. This is part of an ongoing initiative to make books not only more accessible to students, but to also encourage reading outside of school.

"I wanted summer reading to be more contemporary and hip," said ORRHS Librarian Allison Barker. "The website I designed was based off of Instagram, where there is less text and more pictures than usual to grab people's attention. It was also important to me to include links to public libraries because I think that it's important students be able to access books for free."

With the input of teachers in the English Department, the entire program was updated in terms of books and assignments. However, summer reading is only the latest project that Barker has undertaken this past year as the new high school librarian. Barker has also led the "Library Commons" to become an incredibly popular and well-used study space for students and has been steadily increasing the number and genre of books available in the school library. The summer reading program is only the latest reflection of these advancements.

Keel Awards

The Wanderer is pleased to announce that we are soliciting nominations for our 24th annual "Wanderer Keel Awards." The yearly community service honor – which is presented to one Tri-Town resident from each of the three central towns in our circulation area – will be announced in our July 27 edition, and each winner will be the subject of a short feature highlighting their contributions to the local community. But The Wanderer needs your help in selecting these "unsung heroes."

The requirements are simple. Nominees must be legal residents for at least five years of Mattapoisett, Marion, or Rochester, and must have contributed in some way to the overall benefit of the community – either directly to town residents, or indirectly through efforts in promoting town activities, or working to keep the wheels of local government well oiled. The only restriction is that these persons cannot benefit from their efforts in any other way – either financially or politically (hence, sitting elected officials are not eligible).

In doing this, we hope to applaud those who are rarely recognized for their countless hours of service and focus on the many people behind the scenes who remain otherwise anonymous, but provide crucial support to many town functions.

Like the keel of a ship that keeps the vessel from capsizing, the recipients of the Annual Wanderer Keel Award will be recognized for their stalwart efforts in keeping the community on an "even keel."

Past recipients of this honor include:

Dear Editor:

This week, the fifth-grade students from Old Hammondtown School experienced why Mattapoisett is such a special place to live. On Wednesday, at our annual outdoor Flag Day ceremony, we honored our country and veterans with patriotic songs, poems and a mural. At one point, an ABC sanitation truck pulled up and George, the driver, respectfully turned off his vehicle and waited for fifteen minutes before continuing his rounds so as not to drown out the celebration. There are not many other places in this country where that would happen.

We spent the rest of the day visiting the Mattapoisett Free Public Library, the Mattapoisett Historical Museum, the Center School clock tower and the Mattapoisett Town Hall. We would like to thank Jeanne McCullough, Ray Andrews, Jennifer McIntire, Jeffrey Miller, Jordan Collyer, Catherine Heuberger, Michael Gagne, Mel Pacheco and countless other community members for making our day full of fun and learning.

Wherever we went, the police helped us cross streets, construction stopped and the adults emphasized that our town belongs to its citizens. We experienced a connection to our community and we were so grateful for the opportunity. The children are the future of Mattapoisett and we would like to thank you all for the inspiration you have given them.

Mattapoisett is special.

To the Editor:

The Rochester Women's Club would like to extend a big thank you to everyone who donated items to our yard sale that was held last week.

Without all of these donations, we would not be able to hold this event which has become our biggest fund raiser of the year.

All the funds collected go toward the Raymond C. Hartley Scholarship which currently awards three graduating seniors from Rochester with $750 each toward their education.

We would also like to extend a special Thank You to all of the Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts who donated their time to help us set up very early Saturday morning.

We couldn't have done it without you.

Sincerely,
Wendy Carreau

The Art of the Yankee Whale Hunt

Sippican Historical Society Speakers' Series presents "The Art of the Yankee Whale Hunt" on Thursday, June 22 at 7:00 pm at the Marion Music Hall.

Historian Michael P. Dyer will speak on June 22 about his upcoming book, The Art of the Yankee Whale Hunt. The talk will focus on whalemen's perceptions of the hunt as recorded pictorially in their manuscript logbooks, journals, and certain types of scrimshaw. Specifically, Dyer will emphasize the underpinnings and context of the maritime culture that enabled the art form to flourish in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. Why were certain types of maritime documents illustrated? Why were geographical illustrations so common? Why were ship portraits so common? Why did whalemen paint and draw pictures of whaling? How are these different types of illustrations similar and where do they diverge? How did that tradition develop, evolve, and, by the end of the nineteenth century, eventually pass away completely?

OBITUARIES

Clifford Peter FitzGerald, 78, of Atlantis, FL and Mattapoisett, MA passed away at his home on June 13, 2017, from natural causes.

Born in Newton, MA, the son of the late Helen (Carey) FitzGerald and John Joseph FitzGerald, he attended Newton High School where he met the love of his life, Ginnie Milott, on Christmas Eve. At Boston University, he was an outstanding hockey player who became Captain of the team. In his honor, his family created the Clifford P. FitzGerald Scholarship which is awarded annually to a top rising junior or senior Terrier defenseman.

After graduating from Boston University in 1962, he and Ginnie were married and young Peter headed off to pilot training at Craig Air Force Base near Selma, Alabama as a Second Lieutenant. He went on to distinguish himself flying with the Strategic Air Command as well as the Tactical Air Command in Plattsburgh, NY, and Columbus, Ohio. During the Vietnam War, Captain FitzGerald flew more than 100 missions over Laos, Cambodia, and North Vietnam. Flying the WC130-A out of Udorn, Thailand and the Island of Guam, he was an integral part of a then-classified "Weather Modification" program to create thunderstorms to washout Vietcong supply routes like the Ho Chi Minh trail.

After two tours of Vietnam, Captain FitzGerald left active duty with the Air Force in 1969, to fly for a new southern upstart company named Delta Airlines. With a brief stint as an Engineer on the DC-8, he quickly progressed to co-pilot of the DC-9, Boeing 727, and L-1011. He was then promoted to Captain on the MD-80 and finally the Boeing 757/767. During his tenure with Delta, he assumed increasing positions of responsibility in the Air Force Reserves which culminated with him leading the Florida Civil Air Patrol and being promoted to Colonel.

Throughout his over 20 years of military service, Colonel FitzGerald served his country with honor and distinction. By the time he retired from the Air Force in 1992, Colonel FitzGerald had been awarded numerous medals including the Legion of Merit, the Distinguished Flying Cross, the Meritorious Service Medal, the Air Medal with oak leaf clusters, the Vietnam Service Medal with 1 Bronze star for participating in over 29 campaigns, and the Vietnam Cross of Gallantry. He then retired from Delta Airlines in 1995 to enjoy life as a full-time racing aficionado, golfer, and summer time lobsterman.

Preceded in death by his wife Ginnie, survivors include two daughters, Jacqueline "Lyn" Brown, and her husband Lawton, of McLean, VA, and Karen "Kira" Langolf, of Atlantis, FL; one brother, Paul Carey FitzGerald and his wife Jane of Sandy Hook, CT; and four grandchildren, Bradford FitzGerald Brown, Garrett Lawton Brown, Carey Amelienne Brown, and Brigette Adrienne Langolf.

His Funeral will be held on Thursday, June 22nd at 9 am from the Saunders-Dwyer Mattapoisett Home for Funerals, 50 County Rd., Route 6, Mattapoisett, followed by his Funeral Mass at St. Anthony's Church in at 10 am. Visiting hours will be on Wednesday, June 21st from 4-8 pm. Colonel FitzGerald will be buried with military honors in St. Anthony's Cemetery. For directions and guestbook, please visit www.saundersdwyer.com.

Movie Review

Painkiller

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

All the Rage: Saved by Sarno*. A documentary directed by Michael Galinsky. Running time: 94 minutes. No MPAA rating. Now in limited theatrical release.

As a reader of Dr. John Sarno's book Healing Back Pain: The Mind-Body Connection, I was eager to see the documentary about him, All the Rage: Saved by Sarno. The diminutive, gravelly-voiced physician (who retired in 2012) is noted for his theory that a lot of pain, specifically back pain, derives not from structural causes — say, a slipped disc or a crack in the spine — but from suppressed emotion. According to Dr. Sarno, such aches and pains are our mind's way of distracting us from disturbing feelings we'd rather not have; these feelings usually have to do with buried anger due to childhood trauma.

As All the Rage establishes fairly early, such non-hippie, blunt-talking skeptics as Howard Stern, Larry David, and John Stossel (who ran a 20/20 piece on Sarno in 1999 that he still hears about years later) swear by Sarno's teachings. (Other Sarno fans not present in the film: Anne Bancroft and director Terry Zwigoff.) The movie, directed by Michael Galinsky (Horns & Halos), is partly autobiographical: Galinsky, who acknowledges a great deal of stress and anger in his life, is struck down repeatedly by agony in his back, to the point where he spends days at a time on the floor in his office. Stern and Stossel were once floor-dwellers, too; now they take any opportunity to "spread the word." Sarno is the man who took away their pain without surgery or drugs.

Galinsky would like to believe. His approach is to show various people vouching glowingly for Sarno, and then Sarno himself deflecting praise and wanting only to relieve people's pain. We do, however, spend a little more time with Galinsky and his family (including wife and co-director Suki Hawley) than is probably necessary to get the point. The movie lacks a from-skeptic-to-believer narrative, and we might begin to feel impatient with Galinsky, who keeps going back to Sarno for consultations and seems to conclude that the key is giving himself permission to feel things. Sarno, a tough old cookie (he didn't retire until he was 89), might counter that it doesn't matter what you do with your emotions as long as you know they're there.

Mention is made of Sarno's lectures, but more people talk about his book, which can be borrowed through interlibrary loan. I imagine his lecture DVD, which goes for $49.95 on his website, is available for library lending as well. I bring up something so gauche as cost because a lot of the people in All the Rage who benefit from Sarno's methods are white, well-to-do urban creatives. Sarno is shown at a senate hearing, where he discusses the epidemic of pain among the poor, pain caused by their suppressed rage at the brutality of income inequity. One of the senators, Bernie Sanders, presumably agrees, at least with the part about inequity. Another, Tom Harkin, takes the occasion to share his own story. His back, he says, used to hurt so much he had to rest on a cot in his office. Now, years after reading Sarno's book, he is pain-free.

There will, no doubt, be people who dismiss Sarno and the movie on the basis that the idea — "Your pain is all in your head" — is dismissive and insulting. Sarno's point, though, is that the pain is very real; the mind and the body are intricately linked, and who would deny ever feeling tension in one's muscles or an ache in one's stomach in times of stress? Pain caused by emotion is thought of by many as "fake," which sounds like how the old sexist doctors used to handwave such "women's problems" as depression and anxiety. No, Dr. Sarno is not saying that the reason for your particular medical situation is insufficient venting of pique. What he does do is to move the conversation a little further away from invasive procedures or painkillers. The movie succeeds to the extent that it spreads the word, though it's a microbudget documentary unlikely to be seen by many; if 20/20 and Howard Stern couldn't get it done, it's hard to know what could.

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Recently obtained information could open a new opportunity for a career change. But temper that Arian impatience and act on it only when all the facts are made available.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) You're moving into a more active cycle. So put your ideas back on the table, where they'll be given the attention they deserve. Expect a favorable change in your love life.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A friend might ask for a favor that you feel would compromise your values. Best advice: Confront him or her and explain why you must say no. A true friend will understand.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) A relationship continues to develop along positive lines. Meanwhile, a brewing job situation could create complications for one of your pet projects. Look into it right away.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) Your interest in a co-worker's project could lead to a profitable experience for you both. But before you agree to anything, be sure to get all your legal I's dotted and T's crossed.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) Be careful whose counsel you take about a possible long-distance move. Some advice might not necessarily be in your best interest. Stay focused on your goals.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Someone might try to complicate efforts in an attempt to work out that confusing job situation. But don't let that keep you from sticking with your decision to push for a resolution.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) A disagreement on how to handle a family problem could create more trouble for all concerned. Look for ways to cool things down before they boil over.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) An unexpected change in long-standing workplace procedure and policy could provide a new career target for the Archer to aim at. Start making inquires.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) You're finally able to get back into the swing of things, as those temporary doldrums begin to lift. Expect some surprising disclosures from a new colleague.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Rely on your innate sense of justice to see you through a dilemma involving a family member. Other relatives who've stood back soon will come forward as well.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A new friend seems to be pushing you to take risks -- financial or otherwise. Best advice: Don't do it. They might have a hidden agenda that hasn't surfaced yet.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love to see new places and meet new people. Have you considered working for an airline or cruise-ship company?

The Mattapoisett Land Trust and Mattapoisett Historical Society are joining forces once again to host The Great Community Picnic on Thursday, August 3 at 5:30 pm. The event will be at the same beautiful location (Munro Preserve) and we will provide exceptional music (Charlie Phllps, a singer/ songwriter from Brooklyn NY; Grace Morrison, a Wareham singer/songwriter who performed last year; and our "local hero" Dave Dunn & Friends). The Inn on Shipyard Park is donating passed appetizers. A "cash" bar serving beer, wine and local oysters will be available.

Table tickets will be available for purchase at the Mattapoisett Historical Society (5 Church Street, 508-758-2844) and at the Town Wharf General Store (13 Water Street, 508-758-4615). Tables are not officially reserved until payment is received and tickets in hand.

Prices for tables are: Table of 10 = $250, Table of 8 = $200, Table of 6 = $150, Table of 4 = $100. This year, we will also offer pre-event purchase of tickets for beer, wine and oysters, to cut down on time spent waiting in line at the event. Prices will be: Beer = $4, Wine = $5 and oysters $1 a piece, so buy plenty of $1 tickets!

Don't delay! Tables will sell quickly. Purchase yours promptly if you want to attend.

MAC Landscape Painting Workshop

The Marion Art Center is pleased to announce a summer workshop, Painting the Landscape, to be held Friday, August 4 and Saturday, August 5 from 10:00 am to 4:00 pm. In this workshop, award-winning artist Eli Cedrone will cover all key elements needed for a successful landscape painting: design, value, color and brushwork. Students will learn how to have a strategy to capture the scene before them with a simplified design and correct color relationships.

Each day, Eli will demonstrate the quick study and how to simplify value patterns to achieve unity and impact. She will introduce an innovative method of color mixing using a simple, four-value approach. Students will learn to see both color and value as a unit, identify them and quickly mix the desired color. With this approach, it's easy to establish a pattern of light informed by the direction of the sun and to achieve unity and impact. In case of inclement weather, students will have the opportunity to use reference materials. How to translate photos into useful information for paintings will be discussed. Each day, Eli will demonstrate the quick study before students paint.

Animal Advice

Jay Gould, DVM

My dog has had some back issues and my veterinarian suggested acupuncture. Does it really work?

Acupuncture can help with a multitude of different medical issues from arthritis to seizures. It works by placing small needle into specific points on your pets body. They redirect the body's energy and may cause the release of endorphins, which help the relief of pain. Acupuncture is not a procedure that works immediately. It may take time to see improvement, but the benefits can be substantial and long lasting.

I Found the Aardvark!

Each week, hidden somewhere in the pages of The Wanderer is a tiny drawing of an aardvark. The little guy you are looking for looks exactly like the one pictured above (but don't put down this page as your answer, there's another one hidden somewhere in this issue).

Once you find the aardvark you can submit your answer online and if you are right you will get Aardvark Points! You can then use these points to get cool Aardvark Prizes!

To enter visit: www.wanderer.com and Click on I Found the Aardvark

In the June 15, 2017 issue the Aardvark was on page 56!
